“THE POLITICAL PROCESS OF POLICYMAKING”

SPEAKER

Professor Philippe Zittoun

*Secretary General, International Public Policy Association
Research Professor of Political Science at LET-ENTPE,
University of Lyon, France*

Philippe Zittoun is Secretary General, International Public Policy Association and Research Professor of Political Science at LETENTPE, University of Lyon, France. He is Vice-Chair of the IPSA 'Public Policy' Research Committee and coordinator of the International Conference on Public Policy. He is also a member of the editorial board of several international journals such as Critical Policy Studies, Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis, Policy and Society. His research focuses on understanding the policymaking process and, in particular, on the importance of discursive struggles, argumentative strategies, political aspects and the role of actors.

Abstract

Philippe Zittoun analyses the public policymaking process focusing on how governments relentlessly develop proposals to change public policy to address insoluble problems. Rather than considering this surprising Sisyphean effort as a lack of rationality, he examines it as a political activity that produces order and stability.
